1 / 365
with a dog

Creative direction: Anna Sitnikova

Photography: Mykyta Martynenko & Maksymilian Nesterenko

A dog requires of 3 hours of attention per day on average. Often, these are the same walking routes. Often, I want to spend time alone without a dog's eyes and without 100% attention on the street. Often, I choose the weekend walk to the dog's playground instead of shopping or other great things to do. The dog owner bent over at least 365 times a year to clean up after his friend. This is his kind of sport.

Photographer: Mykyta Martynenko

I want a dog like that!

I don't know how fate has brought us together. I love him, I hate him.
He knows better about me than any friend. He has changed my life
I began to appreciate other things, rethinking a lot.
His name is Buddha. This is my dog.

Photographer: Mykyta Martynenko

Photographer: Maksymilian Nesterenko

Photographer: Mykyta Martynenko

Photographer: Mykyta Martynenko

Photographer: Mykyta Martynenko

Photographer: Maksymilian Nesterenko

A dog’s owner can to forget about personal space, not only in a dog's company, but also on the street. It's rare when no one came up for a walk, and there was no question about whether it was possible to touch a dog or take a picture of him. Going out with Buddha, I feel like a real rock star. It is fine if they ask for permission to take a picture of Buddha.
More often than not, no.

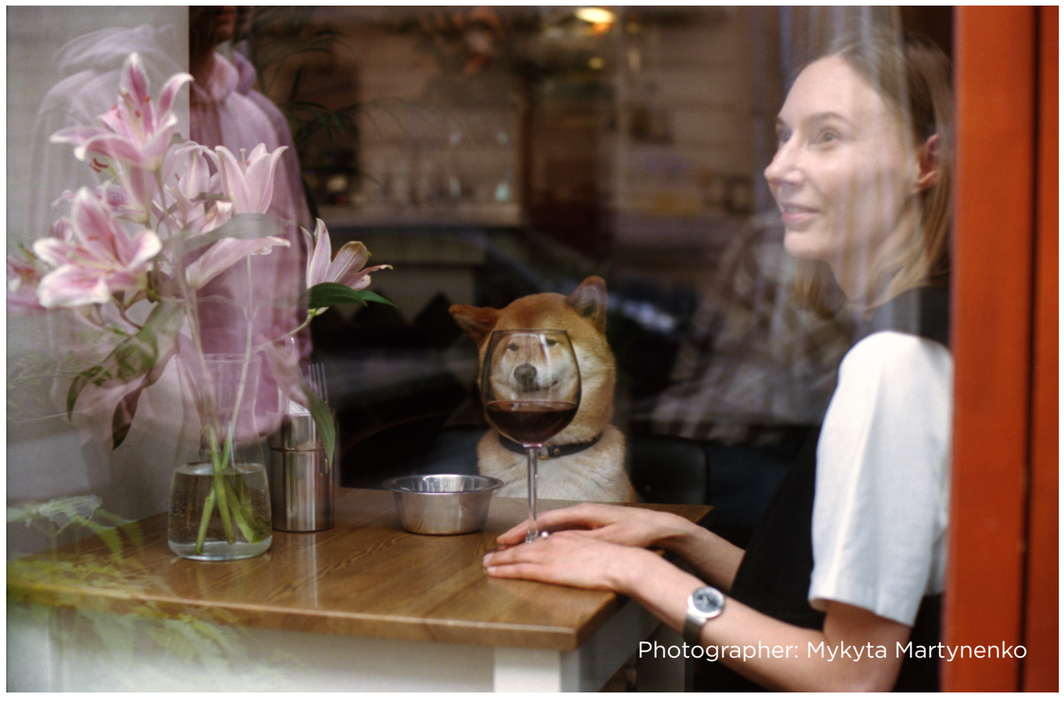

Photographer: Maksymilian Nesterenko

A dog is a choice!

No matter how negatively I react to all the difficult situations and lack of personal space in life with a dog, I don't regret that we have each other.

Photographer: Maksymilian Nesterenko

Photographer: Mykyta Martynenko

CREDITS

Creative Director & Model: Anna Sitnikova

Dog Model: The Shiba Inu Buddha

Photographer: Maksymilian Nesterenko

Photographer: Mykyta Martynenko

Stylist & Photography Assistant: Oleksandr Ostapchuk

Location: Wroclaw, Poland

my_buddza maks_ph prostotakphoto aleksander_sasza_veyd